

My Website is Reliable!

Title of Website: _____

URL: _____

✓	CRITERIA	HOW DOES YOUR SOURCE MEET THIS CRITERIA?
	This source is one of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• .gov and .mil (government run sites)• .edu (an education site)• A trusted and well-known .com/.org/.co site
	This site looks professional <ul style="list-style-type: none">• This site is professional, clean, and organized. There are minimal advertisements.
	The author is stated <ul style="list-style-type: none">• You should use sites that have a stated author. Sometimes the author's name will be on the article or page, and sometimes you will have to dig a little deeper to an "about the author" page or a link on the main site. You should check the credentials of the author to be sure they are an expert on the topic.
	The site contains no typos or errors <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Grammar, spelling, and other errors are a hint that the information has not been reviewed carefully and may be suspect.
	There are citations or a bibliography <ul style="list-style-type: none">• These will help you determine the legitimacy of secondary sources. Ask yourself if the bibliography shows quality research material.
	There is a date for the publication/revision of the page and it is recent <ul style="list-style-type: none">• You will need this information to cite properly. It is also important to know that your information is current.
	The information is in depth and comprehensive <ul style="list-style-type: none">• You want to look for sources dedicated to the information you are looking for, not a source, which briefly touches on your topic. The information is also very specific and avoids general language.
	The author does not show any bias <ul style="list-style-type: none">• The author does not try to persuade you to do something and provides balanced information.	